Speak, and Guarded Lest He Hie Away to the Newspapers.

Four elders were chosen last night at meeting of the Scotch Presbyterian congregation in the new church at Cen-tral Park West and Ninety-sixth street. A repetition of the dissension which broke out a few weeks ago over the election of trustees was checked only by Rev. D. G. Wylie's quick rulings and adjournment. It was a compromise triumph for the pastor's faction.

More than two hundred members of the congregation attended the preliminary prayer meeting, which ended at the business on nand, and there was a mentary silence in expectation of a

"You are out of order. The meeting has adjourned." replied the pastor.
Half the Judience had arisen and was making for the Joseph order.
The congregation will be dismissed with prayer, "firmly said the minister.
When the benediction had been said Mr. Disbrow was surrounded by his supporters, and there were many denunciations by them of "gag rule."

"Then I will give my remarks to the newspapers!" he axolaimed.
Instantly several of the church leaders got around and commenced to dissuade him. He had the speech written out, and there was great anxiety on the part of the elders, who kept reporters away. Mr. Disbrow left the church, accompanied by John McKay, clerk of the session, and a rear guard of other members followed to keep off the newspaper men. At the Ninety-third street station of the elevated road the party boarded a train for downtown. McKay stood close to Disbrow, and as the train started pushed him back on the plantform, remaining on the train himself, hopping to outwit the reporters.

of Broadway and Wall street at 2 P. M. yesterday waiting for a chance to cross. He is eighty-three years old. He had been to visit his son, a clerk in the First National Bank, and was making for the ferry.

Just as a cable car had passed and the road seemed clear Mr. Nevius started across. He had not seen the express wagon belonging to and driven by Casta Baddl coming down Broadway at a smart trot. Mr. Nevius only realized his danger when the wagon was a few feet away. His feeble limbs lost their power, and the next moment, amid a chorus of shouts, he was knocked down, failing clear of the wagon wheels. Now he lies in Chambers Street Hospital with a broken left arm and two scalp wounds. Although he suffers severely from shock he probably will recover.

Feihl-Murder Second Degree.

(Special to The World.)
BRIDGETON, May 23. — The second day's trial of Louis Feihl for the murder of Christian Zaiss took place in the Court-House here this morning. Before the doors of the court-room were opened hundreds of people had assembled in front of the Court-House waiting to gain admission. Crowds were turned away. The State opened this morning with the prisoner's sister-in-law on the stand. She testified that Feihl gave her the watch which was stolen from the premises of William Yerkes, where Zaiss was killed. This fact connected the burglary with Feihl. The defense rest-ed this afternoon and the Judge charged the jury. After seing out four hours the jury returned a verdiet of guilty of murder in the second degree. Feihl will be sentenced to-morrow morning. der of Christian Zaiss took place in the
